

ABSTRACT

I consider that the use of metaphor (Kovecses 2002) by both client and counsellor is creative and is beneficial within the relationship as it can help to facilitate change. A client can use metaphorical language to help describe thoughts and feelings and particularly to emphasize certain issues. I also consider the use of metaphor helps to develop congruence within a client and help improve relationships.