

Abstract

This dissertation will provide an insight into my work as a humanistic and integrative therapist, focussing on shame processes that are often born from and reinforced within the arena of domestic abuse. This dissertation will document my theoretical approach and beliefs as well as the theories that inform my practice. I will demonstrate this within a Rationale, Literature Review and a Case Study.